An observant bicycle rider in Dayton told us about these interesting manhole covers on Waco Street near Norcross Lane. A bit outside of their territory but still very nice. There are four all together with another City of Baytown cover (not pictured) and a City of Houston cover (also not pictured) that Dayton City Manager Derek Woods says is behind the Dayton Police Department building. He also reported that these manhole covers actually were there before Waco Street was. Before there were design standards, contractors could use any manhole covers they had on hand.

Multi-County Crime Stoppers board members and their guests were treated to a lovely Christmas luncheon Dec. 9 and were surprised with a humorous video produced by the very talented Amy McIntosh of The Woodlands Consulting Group who works with MCCS. Amy tells us that she produced the entire video using AI (artificial intelligence) after she came up with the witty lyrics. Scan the QR code at right with your phone to access the video.
