

HISTORY & FOLKLORE

Photos from the January 13, 1972, issue of The Liberty Gazette

Jeffrey and Kyle Hampton were caught resting while doing some yard work for their grandparents. Grandfather's pay was "pretty good" according to the youngsters.

Behind his back he's doing the "Hook 'Em" sign. Local Aggie Jack Willoughby was coaxed out of his daytime quarters at the Man's Shop to flash a big Aggie smile for the camera.

The Fair Store's Bob Thomas was making his daily jogging trip to the Vogue when he ran into the camera. Bob's pace for his jogging trip is a slow walk. Must be getting paid by the hour.

Always smiling, Mrs. LaVerne Capps, was doing a little afternoon grocery shopping when the camera happened upon her. Wife of Forrest Capps, two sons Jud and Steve are both Liberty High graduates.

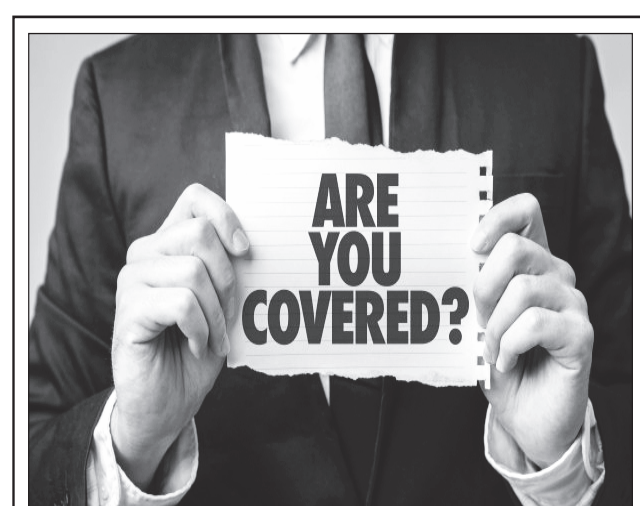

Mrs. Mignette Quinn, Liberty High school journalism teacher, takes advantage of the late banking hours on Friday afternoons, as it is rather difficult to keep teacher's hours and try to attend to banking business during banking hours during the week.

Rick "Scooter" Randel, Liberty High School junior, was on his way to work after school at LaFour's Minimax when we caught him stepping out of his Mustang. Now you know why he's working - car payments.

From Texas Illustrated, 1979 - Crawford Carriere, at left, is dressed in the Great Gatsby fashion of the mid-1930s, when this picture was made. The home of his parents, the Offord Carrieres, seen behind him, is one of Dayton's finest old homes. It has been owned by Mrs. Bud Anselin for many years since.
